IBM Highlights East Side Interns

On Thursday, August 17, 2000 at 10:00 a.m. at IBM, Cottle Road, Building #28, Classroom 2B002, IBM will hold a press conference to showcase East Side Union High School District students who worked as interns this past summer.

Sixty students from Independence, Silver Creek and W.C. Overfelt high schools worked at IBM, Agilent, Hewlett-Packard, Siemens, Philips, Exodus, and Alacritech as part of their East Side Academy experience. Many of the students worked with technology trying to improve their marketability while earning money. At the press conference several students will be making brief presentations about their experiences and managers will be commenting on the value they bring to industry.

Tony Stieber, Industry Liaison for the East Side Academy, a strong advocate for the program said “this program is WIN-WIN for students and industry. The students gain invaluable work experience while the companies receive hard working employees and potential recruits.”
